PROGRAMME

'More than engagement: Big Ideas and Humanities'

Presenter: Michael Spurr

The Oxford Big Ideas series places deep learning at the centre of a discipline based approach to the Humanities. Using teaching and learning resources developed for Years 7-10 History and Geography, this workshop doing more than just scratching the surface by focusing on deep learning. Skills, Multiple Intelligences, thinking tasks, meaningful questions and using the big ideas framework enables students to learn, make connections and transfer their understandings to new topics.

About the Presenter

Michael Spurr is a member of the Big Ideas team, Business Development Manager for Oxford University Press and an Adjunct Research Associate of the School of Historical Studies, Monash University. Before joining Oxford Michael was Executive Director of the History Teachers' Association of Victoria.
